Do you want to give your children an exciting experience in Martial Arts and Chinese Culture this summer? Exposure to Martial Arts is an excellent way for children to learn Chinese language and culture. In addition, your children will gain self confidence, sense of personal achievement, skill of self defense and traditional moral lessons. Our program will teach them Respect, Righteousness and Loyalty through age appropriate exercise, movement and activities. Chinese stories such as Monkey King will be introduced to children through story telling and artwork. This ACE sponsored program is very popular and gained a lot of excellent appraisal from the parents and the kids since it's inception in 2008.

Parent Review:

We enrolled our daughter in this camp 3 years ago -- the summer before she entered Kindergarten at Starr King Mandarin. We wanted to expose her to a bit of Mandarin prior to Kindergarten, but had no idea whether she'd take to the kung fu per se. She LOVED it and is still going to Doc Fai as a regular (die-hard) kung fu student -- along with her little brother (age 5) who joined her this year. It's great!
